ABSTRACT

A method for testing code comprises instrumenting code to output checkpoints at selected points during execution of the code on a processor device to derive individual test checkpoints, and generating a signature using the checkpoints.

r